Early Friday morning the exhibitors of the poultry show began to move their fowls, and before night all had been removed and men were busy tearing down the coops. During the day a great many fowls changed owners, while it is calculated that during the four or five days this week about $500 worth of fowls were sold here, while countless orders were taken for eggs. One dealer from Rockbridge sold $60 worth of fowls, and there is no doubt that the object of the association to kindle a strong interest in improved poultry has been thoroughly successful.
